

Nature Champions Back Biodiversity

Native Oyster Beds

These 'ecosystem engineers' filter water and provide vital food and habitat for coastal wildlife.

1 adult oyster can filter 140 litres of water in a single day. They bury carbon in the seabed and remove nitrogen from the water, recycling it into their shell.

Supporting the reintroduction of Native European oysters to the Dornoch Firth after a century's absence:
<https://nativeoysternetwork.org/portfolio/deep/>

